WELCOME!

Facing the Alps, on the shores of Lake Geneva, Lausanne is the fourth town in Switzerland. Growing and changing, it maintains its human dimension, respectful of its natural setting. Olympic Capital, city of culture, a major training and research hub, abounding in rich historical heritage, Lausanne is an urban centre that radiates far and wide. Our walks, original and varied, showcase these characteristics. Surrounded by green landscapes, welcoming towards the countryside and vineyards that flank it, open towards neighbouring France and only half an hour by boat from Evian, Lausanne is well worth a visit. Completely relaxed, with plenty to please your eye, allow yourself to be guided in Lausanne's streets and parks. Its contrasting relief will appeal as much to the athletic as to the contemplative: in Lausanne, each to his rhythm. Every one of our suggested walks – Olympic, on the lakeshores, in the mediaeval city or in the vineyards – is tailored to your interest and desires.

OLD TOWN WALK

Delve into the historic centre

The Cité hill, crowned by the Cathedral at a height of 542 metres, gives Lausanne its unique character. From the Old Academy, first French-speaking faculty of Reformed theology, to the Château Saint-Maire, the town's open-air architecture bears witness to its mediaeval past. Go-to restaurants, small cafés, a scattering of boutiques and three antique bookshops enliven the neighbourhood. Step down the picturesque Escaliers du Marché to reach the Place de la Palud. In front of the Town Hall, you'll join the milling crowds on market days – a century-old tradition.

Access (public transport):

 Bus N° 16, "Barre" stop;  m2 metro, "Bessières" station

Starting point:

Place du Château Saint-Maire

Arrival point:

Tour de l'Ale, close to Place Chauderon.  Buses N° 4, 6, 9, 16, 17, "Chauderon" stop

Duration:

Approximately 2 hours

On the way:

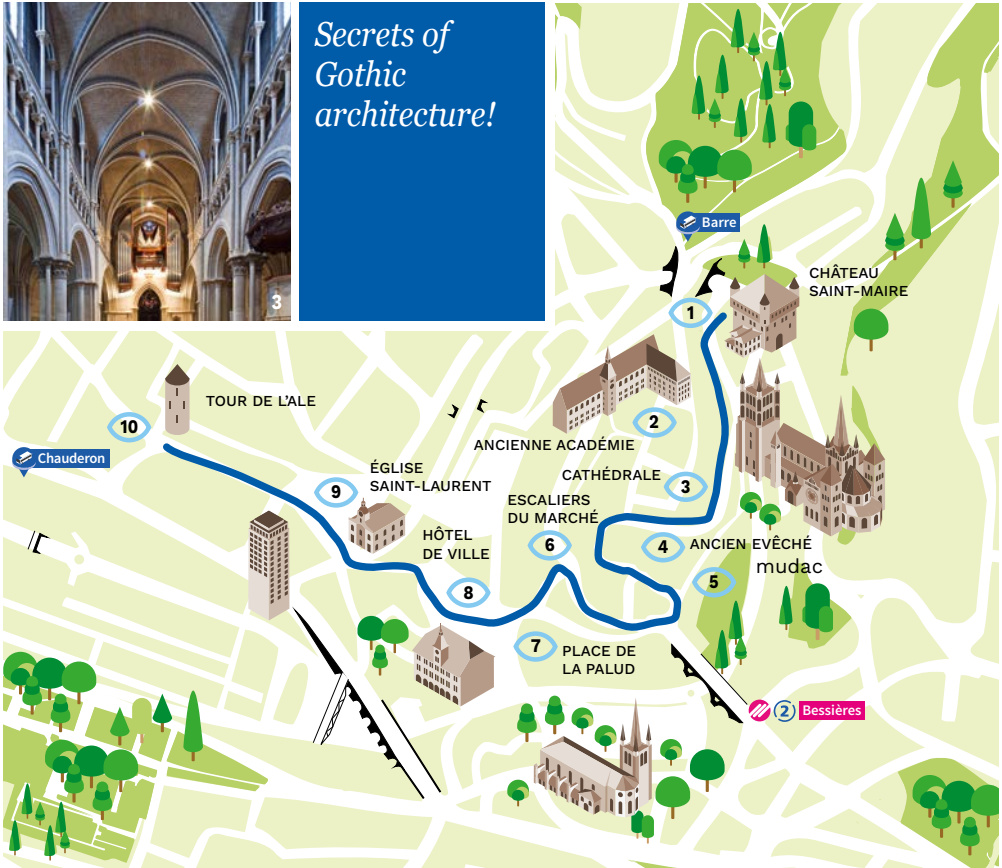

Wednesdays and Saturdays, from 8am to 2pm, produce from the surrounding countryside is on sale at the street markets.

Our advice:

Save your high heels for the evening. Meanwhile, wear comfortable shoes to wander the Cité's pedestrian streets.

Secrets of Gothic architecture!

Walls that speak of the past!

1 → Château Saint-Maire

Both a residence and a donjon, topped with Italian-style bricks, the Castle now houses the Cantonal authorities' headquarters. Its massive sandstone walls are soft to the touch. (Closed to the public)

2 → Ancienne Académie (Old Academy)

This former faculty of theology created by the Bernese as from 1537 became the first French-speaking Reformed academy in Europe. Today, it still serves as a place of learning for students aged 16 to 19.

→ Cathédrale (Cathedral)

- 3 A majestic edifice turned towards the lake and mountains. Constructed between 1170 and 1275, the Cathedral is considered the most beautiful Gothic building in Switzerland. As of old, a night watch calls out the hours between 10pm and 2am from the top of the belfry.

→ Ancien Evêché (Bishop's Palace)

- 4 This complex of buildings that make up the former Bishop's Palace was the seat of the bishops' power in the Middle Ages. This place charged with memory offers the Historical Museum – recently renovated and presenting a new permanent exhibition – a setting conducive to exploring the past.

5 → mudac

This dwelling, named after bailiff Gaudard, is a place of contrast since its thick walls house the “mudac” museum, a forum for exchanges and encounters between designers, stylists, architects and artists. Decorative and fine arts are displayed there.

6 → Escaliers du Marché

This entirely wooden and covered stairway is a compulsory passage. A direct link between the upper and lower part of the Cité, its steepness will reward you by whetting your appetite or helping your digestion.

7 → Place de la Palud

This is the age-old mercantile heart of Lausanne. Standing on the steps of the Fountain of Justice, in front of the famous clock that displays animated scenes every hour, take in the beautiful perspective on the adornments of the 18th-century residences' façades.

8 → Hôtel de Ville (Town Hall)

Although imposing, this 18th-century building is welcoming. Its roof recalls the opulent homes of wealthy landowners from the Swiss countryside. Closed to the public; however, its ancient covered market is an exhibition space.

9 → Église Saint-Laurent (Church of Saint-Laurent)

This baroque church also serves as a seating place for passers-by enjoying a rest or picnicking on its steps. Its elegance gives character to the popular square that bears its name.

10 → Tour de l'Ale

About fifty towers and gates defended Lausanne. Only one still stands: the Tour de l'Ale, saved by a people's movement unconvinced that all should be sacrificed to car traffic.

FAMILY WALK

In Lausanne, there's always something to do

For families, Lausanne offers a multitude of activities for all ages and the town is dotted with playgrounds and parks. The more athletic tackle the town's sloping topography: on foot, mountainbike, roller-skates or cross-country skis, Lausanne is a dream come true for active visitors. And when the rain comes – or just a longing for culture – museum doors are open. Nourishment for the mind and body.

Access (public transport):

 Bus N° 16, "Lac de Sauvabelin" stop

Starting point:

Auberge du lac de Sauvabelin

Arrival point:

Vallée de la Jeunesse,  buses N° 1, 2, 6, 25, "Maladière" stop,

 ① m1 metro, "Malley-Provence" station

On the way:

Fed up walking? Is it too far? Had enough pushing? Public transport to the rescue. www.t-Lch/en

Sports or culture, leisure or strolling!

1 → Aquatis

In Lausanne, it is: an odyssey across the five continents, a full immersion in freshwater with 46 aquariums/vivaria/terrariums, an oasis in the heart of the town. A new experience to be shared with your family!

Access: 🚇 ② Metro m2, stop at “Vennes”, and to reach the Family Walk: 🚇 ② Metro m2, stop at “Flon” and take 🚶 the bus N° 6 from Saint-François until “Lac de Sauvabelin”

2 → Sauvabelin

Children and adults alike delight in this spot, with its lake, geese, restaurant and terrace. In the surrounding forest, the wooden Sauvabelin Tower offers a unique panorama over Lausanne from its 35-metre height – or 302 steps!

3 → Campagne de l’Hermitage

Ten minutes on foot from the town, the leafy, romantic park contains many varied species of trees, the most famous of which is the weeping beech with its interwoven, sinuous branches that conjure up a fairy tale house.

4 → Palais de Rumine

The museum is worth a visit in its own right. Located in the town centre, this Florentine Renaissance building houses the cantonal museums of archaeology, fine arts, geology and zoology.

5 → Parc Mon-Repos

A green haven of tranquillity in the heart of the town, this park harbours a 19th-century landscaped garden and a popular aviary. The ideal place for a timeless moment while the children run around.

6 → Place de Milan

A patch of countryside in the midst of the town, the Place de Milan has something for everyone. A lawn for a lazy siesta, a playground, a huge sand pit and, nearby, the Botanical Garden.

7 → Parc Denantou

Extending the Olympic Museum’s gardens, this magnificent park slopes down gently towards the Ouchy quays. In addition to featuring the Thai pavilion (a royal gift), it is a superb testimony to the Lausanne countryside of long ago.

8 → Ouchy-Bellerive

In Lausanne, all roads lead to Ouchy, its landing pier and terraces that call to mind the Riviera. A holiday atmosphere seems to pervade, both by the lakeside and in the playgrounds.

Since 1937, Lausanne citizens take refuge at the Belleve-Plage swimming pool on hot summer days. Diving, idling and swimming extend the summer against a backdrop of lake and mountains. A unique experience.

9 → Vidy

Sports reign in Vidy, with its two stadiums: Pierre-de-Coubertin and Juan-Antonio-Samaranch. You can play football, hockey, beach-volley, skate bowl and basketball, as well as enjoy street sports, a “Vita” fitness trail and the educational Sports Track.

10 → Vallée de la Jeunesse

This is where children glide on roller-skates or skateboards on mogul waves, while parents roam in the fragrant rose-garden, home to some 8,000 species. All can meet up in the Espace des Inventions.

1 → Le Château du Signal

In 1982, David Bowie acquired the Château du Signal, a beautiful residence surrounded by a 4,000-m² landscaped park, built in 1900 and located at the edge of the Sauvabelin wood. During his years in Lausanne, he married Iman in 1992 and many citizens met him at the market on Saturday mornings.

2 → Villa Mon-Repos, Parc Mon-Repos

In 1922, baron de Coubertin left Paris to settle in Lausanne. The town council then lent him a flat on the third floor of the Villa Mon-Repos. He moved there with his wife, his daughter and his son.

3 → Tabac Besson, rue de Bourg

Writer Georges Simenon bought 200 pipes and purchased his special Dunhill blend there. Every week, the father of Inspector Maigret entrusted to the shop 12 pipes to be cleaned that he then smoked while writing.

4 → Hôtel de Ville (Town Hall)

On September 15, 1766, a young pianist aged 10 and a half gave a resounding concert in the Town Hall's council chambers. That prodigy, at the time on a great European tour, was no other than Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart. (Closed to the public.)

5 → Royal Savoy

This hotel has always enjoyed the graces of aristocrats from all over the world. The King of Thailand spent his youthful years there. The Spanish royal family was faithful to it for a long time, electing it as one of its privileged retreats.

6 → Montchoisi ice rink

During the 1950s, the Chaplin family made the most of the distractions offered by Lausanne. Oona Chaplin learned to skate on the ice of Montchoisi before sipping a well-brewed tea at the Beau-Rivage Palace.

7 → Thai Pavilion

A stone throw from Lake Geneva, in the green setting of the Parc Denantou, stands a royal Thai pavilion, built in 2007 by Thai craftsmen and inaugurated by the daughter of his late Majesty King Bhumibol Adulyadej who completed all his studies in Lausanne.

8 → Beau-Rivage Palace

In the peaceful atmosphere of the Beau-Rivage Palace, a few words written in the establishment's guest book attest to how Lausanne attracts the most diverse personalities: Ayrton Senna, Coco Chanel and Phil Collins's words echo yet older visits: Victor Hugo or Gary Cooper.

9 → Hôtel Angleterre & Résidence

In 1816, the very romantic Lord Byron, then aged 28, stayed on the shores of Lake Geneva. His writings inaugurated the golden age of tourism in the area. In Ouchy, he lived on the water edge, at the Angleterre Hotel.

10 → Vidy port

In 1964, visitors of the Swiss national exhibition dived in the waters of Lake Geneva aboard the Mesoscoppe, the world's first tourist submarine. It was invented by oceanographer Jacques Piccard, father of balloon pilot Bertrand.

place on all levels!*

Lausanne is having fun? Well, it's time to dance now!

1 → m2 “Riponne-Maurice Béjart” station

Inaugurated on October 27, 2008, this metro station honours Maurice Béjart who lived at the Riponne. A photographic portrait signed by Marcel Imsand of the choreographer in love with Abyssinian cats welcomes travellers when they ride the escalator.

2 → Pictures by Peter Welz at the Riponne

In the m2 station dedicated to Maurice Béjart, the Berlin artist created a series of giant photographs as a tribute to dance. Produced on translucent plexiglas with Béjart Ballet Lausanne dancers, they embellish the two bays of the station. Of course, it's on stage that the BBL is most dazzling.

3 → Opéra de Lausanne

Yesterday, like today, the Opéra de Lausanne, dating back to 1871 and recently refurbished, has always favoured dance to complete its rich lyrical seasons. The most famous international ballets regularly perform there.

4 → Allée Ansermet at Montbenon

On the Montbenon Hill, the Allée Ernest-Ansermet bears the name of the famous Vaud musicologist and conductor who was hired by Diaghilev to become the conductor of his famous Ballets russes company from 1915 to 1923.

5 → Flon

In the trendy district of the Flon, you can dance until the early hours. With its four dance floors, the MAD – ranked amongst the TOP 100 of the best clubs in the planet – has been the temple of electronic music for the past 20 years.

6 → Arsenic and Sévelin 36

In the extension of the Flon, in a former industrial wasteland, the Théâtre Sévelin 36 and the Arsenic constitute the hot spot of choreography in all its contemporary forms. A glance at their programming would allow you to end your walk with a show. Well-known companies and associations also keep dancing alive and growing there.

7 → Salle Métropole (Métropole Hall)

During the 1930s, music hall had found a home in the Métropole Hall, at the base of Switzerland's first skyscraper. Threatened by ruin, it was brought back to life in 1992 when the Béjart Ballet Lausanne chose that venue for its first performances outside the Beaulieu Theatre.

8 → Beau-Rivage Palace

The Beau-Rivage Palace is one of the sponsors of the Prix de Lausanne. Great names in dance have walked its marble floors. The most famous are showcased in a photo gallery inspired by the signatures in the establishment's guest book.

9 → Lifar statue

A great Ukrainian dancer and choreographer, Serge Lifar died in Lausanne in 1986. On the Quai Delamuraz in Ouchy, a metal sculpture immortalises Icarus's flight, in memory of the eponymous ballet that established Lifar as the first leading dancer of the Paris Opera, during the 1930s.

10 → IMD Park

Along the Avenue de Rhodanie, south of the IMD business school, a plaque pays tribute to Serge Diaghilev. This is where, well surrounded at the Villa Bellerive – particularly by Stravinski – he found the strength to breathe new life into the Ballets russes in 1915. (Cannot be visited. IMD reception.)

OLYMPIC WALK

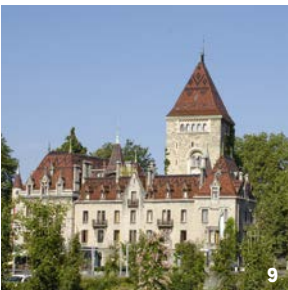

The not-to-be-missed spots in the Olympic Capital

Not for nothing is Lausanne Olympic Capital. On Lake Geneva's shores, baron Pierre de Coubertin found a neutral and idyllic setting to defend the restoration of the Olympic ideal. Close to 300,000 visitors come every year to the Olympic Museum, a marble building that blends into the landscape. Beyond that, the whole town resonates with the legacy of the Games. By the lakeside, in the parks, seeing Switzerland's first athletic tracks, the walker will keenly feel the preservation of the Olympic spirit.

Access (public transport):  Bus N° 13, "Mon-Repos" stop,  ② m2 metro, "Bessières" or "Ours" station
 Starting point: Villa Mon-Repos
 Arrival point: Ouchy,  bus N° 2, "Ouchy-Olympique" stop,  ② metro m2 "Ouchy-Olympique" station
 Duration: Approximately 2 hours
 On the way: Do allow enough time to visit the Olympic Museum, with its permanent exhibitions and leisure areas.

In Pierre de Coubertin's footsteps!

*The living

Olympism
in Lausanne!*

1 → Villa Mon-Repos

Baron Pierre de Coubertin chose it as his residence from 1929 to 1937. Naturally, the villa housed the first IOC Secretariat, then the first Olympic Museum's management. (Closed to the public)

2 → Hôtel de Ville (Town Hall)

On April 10 1915, Lausanne officially welcomed Olympism at the Town Hall. The then mayor, Paul Maillefer, received Pierre de Coubertin here and gave the IOC and its archives a home. (Closed to the public)

3 → Casino de Montbenon

In 1917, sport was developing with references to the ancient Greek cult of the body. In the casino's gardens and rooms, Lausanne's Olympic Institute trained students in ancient gymnastics.

4 → Cimetière du Bois-de-Vaux

(Bois-de-Vaux Cemetery)

Honorary citizen of the town of Lausanne, Pierre de Coubertin was laid to rest in this cemetery's leafy alleys, close to the stadium that bears his name.

5 → Château de Vidy

The IOC's headquarters are housed in this beautiful 18th-century castle that will be integrated, in 2020, in a new architectural complex named Olympic Unity House. (Undergoing renovations until 2020)

6 → Zone de Vidy, Stade Pierre-de-Coubertin Stade Juan-Antonio-Samaranch

(Vidy area, Pierre de Coubertin Stadium
Juan-Antonio-Samaranch Stadium)

In Vidy, Swiss athletics benefited from the country's first cinder track. This is also where the Olympic Institute of Lausanne brought its students for outdoors physical education training.

7 → Espace Pierre de Coubertin

The Place de la Navigation, inaugurated in Ouchy in 1995, could not forget Pierre de Coubertin. A recreational and relaxation area is dedicated to this renovator of the Olympic Games.

8 → Countdown

In competitive sport, the starting signal is given at zero. The clock that counts down the time remaining until the next Olympic Games, in its setting of Jura limestone, is a reminder that Lausanne is headquarters to the IOC since 1915 and Olympic Capital since 1994.

9 → Château d'Ouchy

It is within these ancient walls and overlooking the lake that the first conference of the Universal Pedagogical Union, created by Pierre de Coubertin in 1925, was held in 1926. The Olympic spirit blows on the lake.

10 → The Olympic Museum

The recently renovated museum is a journey through the Olympic movement's history, from antiquity to the present day. It also pays tribute to great champions and houses the world Olympic documentation centre.

ARCHITECTURE WALK

Discover Lausanne's architectural heritage and future look

In Lausanne, the built heritage offers an architectural panorama from the Middle Ages to the noughties. From the end of the 19th century to this day, building has been in phase with modernity's key stages. Thus, ten monuments bear witness in a spectacular manner to the town's cultural ambitions and the image it has of itself. Each of these objects characterises the urban landscape or will characterise it in the decades to come. Although some are at the project stage, their architectural impact is nonetheless significant.

Access (public transport):  Buses N° 4, 6, 9, 16, 17, "Bel-Air" stop

Starting point: Place Bel-Air

Arrival point: SwissTech, EPFL,  bus N° 31, "EPFL-UNIL" stop,   m1 metro, "EPFL" station

On the way: Fed up walking? Too far? Public transport at the rescue. www.t-l.ch/en

Our advice: A trawl on the web, in the architecture section of a bookshop or library is no luxury to embark on this walk armed with full knowledge.

1 → Bel-Air Métropole

With its emblematic skyscraper, this urban complex was built between 1929 and 1932 by architect Alphonse Laverrière. An expression of American-style modernism, it represented the new era of offices in town.

2 → Quartier du Flon

Leading names in Swiss architecture designed the flagship buildings in the Flon District. Worth discovering: La Miroiterie, Les Pépinières, Les Cubes, L'Arbre et ses racines, the new Esplanade and the old garages refurbished to welcome artists and artisans.

3 → F'ar Forum d'Architecture Lausanne

With an unbiased and perceptive approach, Lausanne observes itself here. A focal point for professionals who build the city and for the public, this space gives a voice to the multiple players who create the town and its environment.

4 → Plateforme 10

Under construction, Plateforme 10 will house in 2018 the Museum of Fine Art (mcba), joined in 2019 by the Museum of Photography (Musée de l'Elysée) and the Museum of Contemporary Applied Arts (mudac).

5 → Hotel Royal Savoy

Inaugurated in 1909 and newly renovated, this luxury hotel that seems to come straight out of a fairy tale is worth the trip, particularly to contemplate its monumental mosaic frescoes and imposing Belle Époque façade and, especially, the Sky Lounge that offers a spectacular view.

6 → Maison du Sport International

An essential part of Olympism, the Maison du Sport International is an icon of modern architecture in Lausanne. Designed by Bernese architects, this building adds a sculptural dimension to the Vidy landscape.

7 → Geopolis UNIL

Erected in place of a former factory, Geopolis serves as a landmark for Lausanne University's campus, as well as a link with EPFL; yet it is also a remarkable symbol of the southern entrance to the town of Lausanne.

8 → Rolex Learning Center EPFL

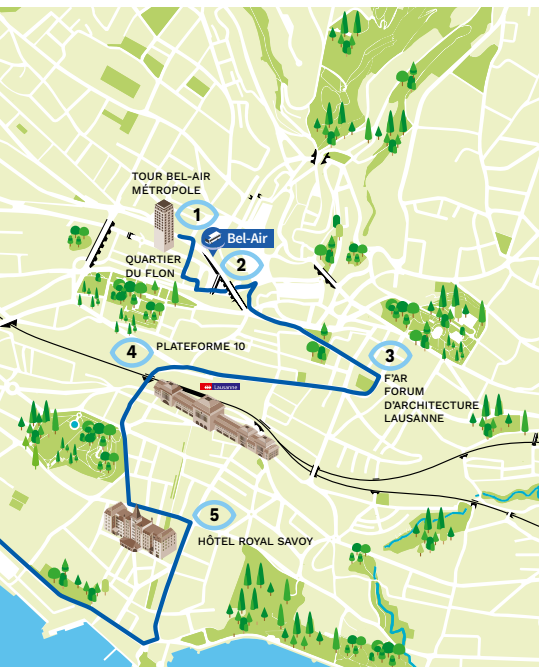

With its invisible pillars and gentle undulations, this building, signed by Japanese architectural bureau SANAA, functions both as a laboratory for learning and a library with 500,000 volumes.

9 → ArtLab EPFL

Long and narrow, this recently opened building is the work of the Japanese architect Kengo Kuma. Accessible to the public, it encourages visitors to immerse themselves completely in the concerts of the Montreux Jazz Festival before relaxing at the Montreux Jazz Café at EPFL. At the other end of the building is an exhibition devoted to big data, two permanent exhibitions dedicated to the archives of Venice and Big Data (free admission) and various temporary exhibitions.

10 → SwissTech Convention Center EPFL

Amongst the most modern and best equipped convention centres in the world, this building shows both technological and architectural audacity, confirming EPFL's decisive role in the urban landscape.

OUTINGS ON THE WATER

Experience a multitude of nautical and aquatic pleasures

Lausanne is also a port town. On the pleasant Ouchy quay, built in 1901, step aboard one of the Belle Époque fleet vessels belonging to the Compagnie générale de navigation (CGN). Viewed from the water, the town extends from the banks of the Venoge river to the first vineyards of Lavaux. Along the Swiss or French coasts, Lausanne is never far away and it's a pleasure to return there on the way back from one of the leisure or gourmet cruises offered by the CGN. Other aquatic trips are possible: on an Aquarel solar-powered boat or on La Vaudoise, a lateen sail boat. For the more athletic, Vidy is a hot spot for fans of rowing, water skiing, sailing, pedal boats, wakeboard and stand-up paddle.

Access (public transport):  bus N° 2, "Ouchy-Olympique" stop -  m2 metro, "Ouchy-Olympique" station

→ Aboard a "Belle Époque" vessel

Lake Geneva has a homogenous and unique-in-the-world Belle Époque fleet, beautifully preserved and restored. With their paddle wheels, high orange chimney and deep whistle, these ships take us back in time.

www.cgn.ch/en-gb/accueil

→ On a solar-powered boat with the Aquarels

The Lake Geneva Aquarels carry a slight aura of science fiction. Yet these present-day solar-powered boats are an invitation to 100% ecological coastal meandering. With cruises and activities, it's a magical way to enjoy the lake. www.lesaquarelsduleman.ch

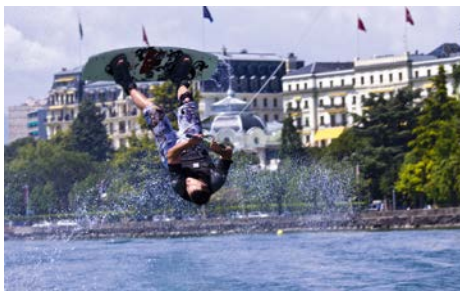

→ Aboard La Vaudoise, a lateen sail boat

Once upon a time, boats transported goods on Lake Geneva. The last to bear witness to that period, the lateen sail boat La Vaudoise, classified a historic floating monument, is today a leisure vessel. Its cruises often turn into memorable festivities.

LAKESIDE WALK

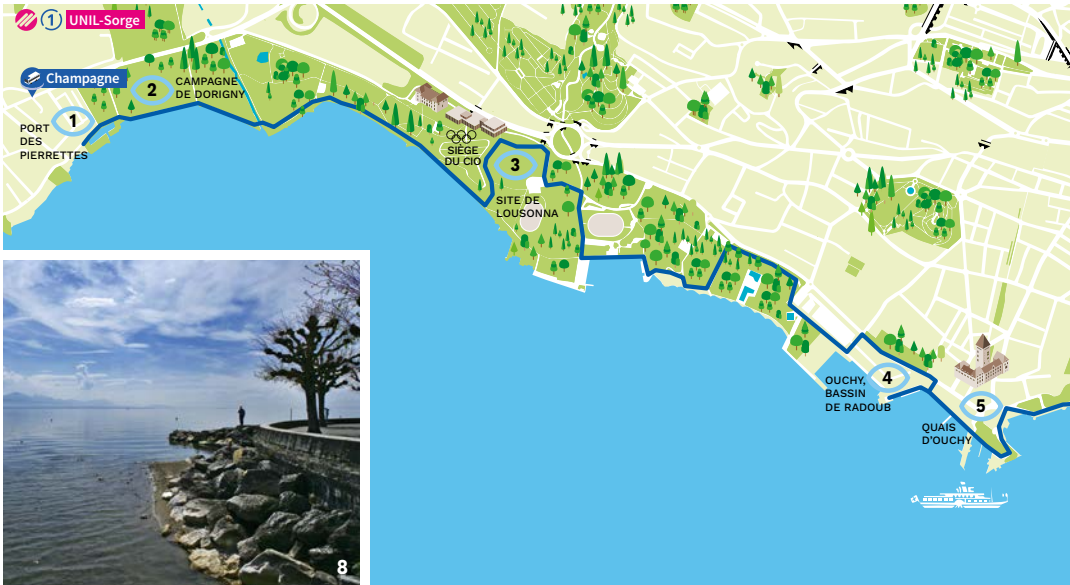

Wonderful relaxation on the shores of Lake Geneva

Two thousand years ago, Lausanne settled on the waterfront. Today, its well-preserved green shores are still delightfully attractive. Whether developed or wild, the lakeside puts on a show of the town's best offerings: sports, nature, history and leisure. From St-Sulpice to Lutry, a footpath hugs the coastline almost without interruption. On a small pebble beach or on the busy Ouchy quays, Lake Geneva makes Lausanne a home port.

Access (public transport):	 ① m1 metro, "UNIL-Sorge" station
Starting point:	Port des Pierrettes,  bus N° 701 from Bourdonnette, "Champagne" stop
Arrival point:	Lutry,  bus N° 9, "Voisinand" stop
Distance:	10 km
Duration:	Approximately 2 hours and a half
On the way:	Never losing sight of the lake, take the time to stroll whatever the season, in fair or stormy weather, in this magnificent landscape.

A beautiful (lake)side of Lausanne!

Almost touching the water, from St-Sulpice to Lutry!

1 → Port des Pierrettes

With its fishermen's huts and small holiday cottages, this port invites you to escape. All the lake birds cohabit peacefully here.

2 → Campagne de Dorigny

At the far end of the magnificent alley of plane trees, students are hard at work. The University and EPFL campus stretches down to the sports area by the lakeside. In the summer, it's a popular spot for barbecues.

3 → Site de Lousonna (Site of Lousonna)

Around 15 B.C., Romans stopped in the area. Deciding it was a promising location, they settled here, creating the city of Lousonna. In the 4th century, the Teutons migrated to the Cité, moving the heart of the town away from the shores.

4 → Ouchy, bassin de radoub

(Ouchy, maintenance and gravel docks)
Lausanne to port, the Alps to starboard. Yet some are hard at work here, with boats dredging the shallows and transporting building materials, perpetuating an ancient tradition.

5 → Quais d'Ouchy

Built in 1901, Ouchy quays have long been a beloved spot for Lausanne inhabitants. In summer as in winter, people come here for a family walk, a romantic stroll, to enjoy an ice cream or a typical cheese fondue.

6 → Fontaine olympique (Olympic fountain)

A striking monument facing Lake Geneva and the Alps, this fountain indicates the presence of the Olympic Museum, invisible from the lakeside. Tourists enjoy having their picture taken, eyes aglow with the beauty of the view.

7 → Tour Haldimand (Haldimand Tower)

Previously, this romantic tower built in 1823 was located on an island. Today, this sentinel marks the end of the Ouchy quays. The walk continues on a footpath along the waterfront towards Pully.

8 → Embouchure de la Vuachère (Mouth of the Vuachère river)

The only Lausanne river that remains close to its natural state, the Vuachère flows into Lake Geneva. A small wild paradise on the edge of the town.

9 → Pully et son port (Pully and its marina)

Pully, all aboard! At the marina, old freshwater sailors rub shoulders with young racers and famous yachtsmen. If you'd rather stay on firm ground, you can enjoy a ride on the miniature train.

10 → Lutry, le bourg et la plage (Lutry, the village and beach)

In Lutry, the mediaeval village was the first stage on the route to the Alps. Its old rooftops contemplate the lake serenely. From the beach – a hugely popular spot in the summer – you'll enjoy a beautiful view on the Alps.

UNESCO World Heritage vineyards

From the Olympic Museum to Chillon Castle, the 32-km long walking trail offers a wealth of sensations. Starting with the walk, eight and a half hours through Lavaux and its terraced vineyards, listed as a UNESCO World Heritage site in the category “Cultural Landscapes”. To the satisfaction of the physical exertion is added that of discovery. From village to village and through vineyards, an educational itinerary reveals the region’s eight designations of origin, with wines that are gaining an international reputation. Along the way, grape varieties and the notion of “terroir” (set of special characteristics linked to the geography, geology and climate of the area) become more familiar. Following the seasons, walkers can observe the work carried out in the vineyards. For those who wish to discover Lavaux in stages, each designation has set up a circuit and a secondary itinerary. Adventurers setting off on the great trail follow the signposts with the GT abbreviation. Located in strategic spots such as train stations and landing piers, these signs and other indications are supplemented with blue vineyard trail signs.

1 → Grandvaux, panorama sur le vignoble

(Grandvaux, panorama on the vineyard)

The village of Grandvaux is a proper balcony on Lavaux. The plunging point of view on the terraced vineyards against the backdrop of the lake and Alps has inspired painters and photographers.

2 → Grandvaux, le caveau Corto et statue Pratt

(Grandvaux, Corto wine cellar and Pratt statue)

Hugo Pratt, a giant of comic strips, fell under the spell of this winegrowers' village where he lived surrounded by books. Through his famous character Corto Maltese, a statue and wine cellar pay him a panoramic tribute.

3 → Les murs de pierre ancestraux au chemin des murs à Grandvaux

(Ancestral stone walls at the chemin des murs in Grandvaux)

The Lavaux vineyard was landscaped in terraces, with close to 450 kilometres of walls in total. The stones, coming from screes, give the region its unique character.

4 → La culture de la vigne au chemin des vignes à Grandvaux

(Cultivation of vines at the chemin des vignes in Grandvaux)

There are several techniques to prune vines. In the past, each plant was secured to a wooden cane. Nowadays, the plants are trained along metal trellises that often run parallel to the hillside.

5 → Les cépages de Lavaux au chemin du Daley

(Lavaux grape varieties at the chemin du Daley)

Grandvaux is one of the main winegrowing areas. Along the way, you'll discover the Chasselas, the main Lavaux grape variety and the ambassador of its "terroir", that is the expression of the soil in the wine.

6 → Les capites, un patrimoine bâti à Aran

(The "capites", a built heritage in Aran)

Spread out in the vineyards, "capites" are small huts in which the winegrowers used to store their tools. Today, they welcome passers-by, especially when it's aperitif time.

7 → Le château de Montagny-sur-Villette

(Castle of Montagny-sur-Villette)

The awarding of UNESCO World Heritage status to the vineyard is also due to the architectural quality of the fine winegrowers' houses. This castle is a good illustration of the harmony between the built environment and the landscape.

8 → Le hameau viticole du Châtelard

(The winegrowers' hamlet of the Châtelard)

A few houses, gardens and vines. The path that leads there crosses a brook marking the border between the Lutry and Villette designations.

9 → Les toits médiévaux et la balance romaine de Savuit

(Savuit's mediaeval roofs and Roman scale)

The village speaks of past times, with its old tile roofs. You'll even see a 17th-century scale that was used to weigh the grape harvest and hay. It is inspired by a Roman technique.

10 → La tour Bertholod (Bertholod Tower)

A mediaeval architectural heritage, this tower has belonged since the 16th century to the commune of Payerne, situated in the north of the canton of Vaud. Some towns or cantons located far from the vineyards own lands there.

A Museum to relish

As the world's first museum devoted to food and nutrition, the Alimentarium has been exploring the many aspects of the human diet from a historic, scientific and cultural point of view for over 30 years.

Its multidisciplinary, global and objective approach has gradually established the Alimentarium as a reference centre on the topic. The Museum lies in Vevey, on the shores of Lake Geneva. Opposite the entrance, an 8-metre tall fork rises from the water. This landmark is the most well-known object in the Alimentarium collection and has become a major tourist attraction.

The 2018 annual theme, The faces behind food, adds a new twist to the three sectors of the reference exhibition: Food, Society and the Body. This new topic focuses on the people involved in food production. In fact, we are the only species that cooks. This annual topic brings new perspective to how we relate to food and, with various themed activities throughout the year, is an excellent opportunity to (re)discover the Museum, its collection and various exhibition areas.

Practical experimentation is inseparable from the theme of food so, naturally, it is an integral part of the Museum's DNA. With culinary workshops designed especially for children and/or adults, presentations on topical themes, scientific demonstrations, and dishes prepared by in-house chefs and served in the Restaurant, the Alimentarium promises an extraordinary visit to savour with all your senses.

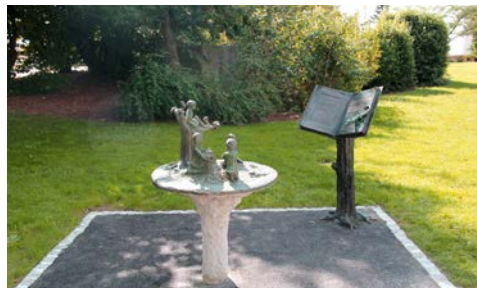

Following the approach taken by the world's leading institutions, the Alimentarium's unique digital platform makes its knowledge accessible to a wider audience. Children, adults and professionals can all find a fun way to learn on www.alimentarium.org
