4. The monument to the French internees

Source : Morges Région Tourisme

During the 1870 war between France and Prussia, a part of the French soldiers took refuge in Morges. On 2 March 1871, an explosion of the arsenal killed 22 French soldiers and 2 citizens of Morges, while they were manipulating rifle cartdridges in the courtyard of the castle. In 1915, this monument was erected in their memory.

This Obelisk is made of limestone from Saint-Triphon and is named after the victims.

Artist : Unknown

Origin : Originally, this obelisk was located in the cemetery of Saint-Roch (Morges).

Location : Parc de l'Indépendance

5. Vaud patriots monument

This obelisk is made of stone from Echaillon (in Isère) a rare oolitic limestone from France.

This monument was intended for the centenary of the Vaud revolution in 1898 but was achieved in 1900. The obelisk celebrates the memory of Jean-Jacques Cart (1747-1813), Jules Muret (1759-1847) and Henri Monod (1753-1833), who all had a proeminent role during the revolution.

Artist : Théophile van Muyden, architect from Lausanne ; David Doret, marble mason and Raphaël Lugeon, engraver, sculptor and medal maker from the Canton de Vaud.

Origin : This sculpture was designed by Théophile Muyden, the obelisk was made by David Doret and the bronze plates crafted by Raphaël Lugeon.

Location : Parc de l'Indépendance.

The Symposium Sculpture Walk

Between 1992 and 2024, the International Sculpture Symposium was held every two years in Morges. During these events, professional and amateur artists created sculptures outdoors in the courtyard of Morges Castle.

Some of the sculptures created over the years can now be viewed behind Morges Castle. Created by artists with very different styles, these sculptures offer the perfect opportunity to revisit the themes of past symposia.
